

Welcome to Distinctive Stain.

You are entering a world where humans have established a new relationship with their garments and stains. The era of bleaches and cleaners that polluted the planet's waters has come to an end.

It is gratifying to stroll through the streets and observe how people proudly display the marks that reflect their life and experiences. In this parallel universe, individuals prefer to wear clothing in light tones, whites, and beiges, as they are more prone to getting stained easily.